WORRIES SOON END

ANXIETY IN THE CAPITOL ABOUT APPOINTMENTS UNDER GOVERNOR FREAR.

Attorney General Peters is back in his office today after being away on a vacation for about two weeks enjoying the simple life on the sea beach beyond Diamond Head. His presence in the office for the next two days will be largely formal, as his resignation takes effect on Thursday with the outgoing Governor Carter.

Peters is about the only one of the department heads of the present administration who wears a perfectly cheerful expression, for the reason that he is the only one who has no hopes of re-appointment. Long ago he announced his intention of retiring from public office when the new administration begins, and straight way showed his sincerity by fitting up an office in the McCandless block and giving every body to understand very definitely that he would not accept a reappointment.

All the other department heads want to be reinstated by the new Chief Executive of the Territory and while there has been nothing to indicate that they will not be, still there has been a little of a positive assurance that they will. Explained, therefore the abstracted and careworn expression on many faces about the Executive buildings, for the strain of uncertainty is bound to tell a little on the nerves, and to be reflected from the subordinate staff of the various offices.

In the meantime Chief Justice Frear is not saying a word, but is presumably sawing wood.

MUTINY OF CHINESE

THIRTEEN OF THEM MAKE A RAID ON CAPTAIN'S CABIN ON VALDIVIA.

Thirteen Chinos at the Captain's door, Yo-ho, heave ho! Thirteen buckets of dead men's gore, Yo, heave ho, my hearties!

Marine Police Officer Reeves sauntered into the police station late Saturday night humming something to the above effect. There had been mutiny aboard the good steamship Valdivia, Britisher, Captain Reid, from Newcastle, "with coals."

It was from the Valdivia when she was last here that a Chinese cook escaped and Captain Reid had to put up a bond to return and face the U. S. District Court and it will cost him $500 fine if the Chinese is not returned. There seems little chance of his being returned.

Since arrival in this port, on August 6, Captain Reid has refused to give the Chinese crew, numbering thirteen, any spending money. He expects to lose $500 on account of the Chinese cook who deserted and he proposed to the thirteen Chinese of his crew that they promise to make up the $500 fine between them in case any one of their number should follow the cook's example and clear out. His suggestion was not met favorably by the Oriental sailors and they refused to organize themselves into an insurance company for the benefit of the captain. Whereupon the captain refused to allow them any money to spend.

On Saturday the crew wanted cash to pay for tobacco and other articles of luxury and necessity purchased from a Chinese storekeeper ashore. Captain Reid refused to dig unless they guaranteed him against loss by any further desertions.

The thirteen Chinese, in a body, mutinied and went to the captain's cabin. He closed and locked the door. They pounded on the door and created a great disturbance, making dire threats. The captain got a messenger to the police station and Officers Reeves and Apana went to the ship. There a council was held, Apana acting as interpreter. The Chinese still refused to protect the captain against any of their number deserting and the captain was firm in refusing to allow them money. However, the peace conference was more successful than any Hague affair and this morning the Chinese returned to work, probably awed by the suggestion of irons and handcuffs and the danger of pounding on a door behind which might be a loaded gun.

PALACE SALOON MAN MUST FACE JURY

WILL HAVE OPPORTUNITY TO PROVE LIQUOR WAS FOR HIS OWN LUAAU.

Judge Whitney's matinee today was well attended. Most notable of the cases disposed of was the charge of selling liquor on Sunday against Moore of the Palace Saloon, the matter of whose license renewal is about to come before the Liquor License Commission. Moore testified that he was shipping some hard drink in a hack for a luau at which he expected to be present, in other words the liquor alleged to have been sold was intended for himself and was being sent on in advance.

Moore demanded a jury trial and Judge Whitney said he could surely have a jury trial in the Circuit Court, to which his case was referred. Inspector Fennell beamed happiness at the court's finding.

Seventeen Chinese paikau gamblers were each fined $10 and costs. They were arrested in the servant's quarters of the Warrington residence in Makiki, not in the Warrington house as has been erroneously stated. Chief of Detectives Taylor and his men made the haul. Four crap-shooters, arrested Saturday in the yard of Catton-Neill, were each fined $4 and costs.

Dora Lancaster was fined $3 and costs for disturbance of the night. Three men and a host of ladies created a disturbance near the Winston block and several were fined while others were lectured.

Treasurer Campbell has a notice in this issue concerning the revocation of commission to grant marriage licenses the commission as an agent to grant marriage licenses of R. von S. Donkowitz of South Kona.

WOOLLEY ADMITTED

THE DISTINGUISHED PROHIBITION ADVOCATE NOW A MEMBER OF THE LOCAL BAR.

The Supreme Court was in session for a brief time this morning, with Chief Justice Frear presiding on the bench. The only matter of interest which came up, however was the admission to the bar of the Territory as a practicing attorney, of Hon. John G. Woolley, the nationally famed temperance advocate, who came here some time ago at the instance of the Anti-Saloon League to help in the fight against the liquor traffic in the Territory.

Woolley took the oath in the presence of quite a number of attorneys who had gathered to see the ceremony, and he afterwards paid his fee of $10 and received his certificate from Deputy Clerk James A. Thompson, remarking as he did so that he must now get out and hustle up a client from whom he may get his ten dollars back.

Woolley stated that he expected to take up a private practice in Honolulu. "Of course I have one client," said he, "and that is the Anti-Saloon League. I haven't had time yet to get in full touch with the liquor situation here as yet, but I have read the liquor law, and think that it is a fairly good one. No, from the reading I made, which was not the most careful, I do not think that it will be easy to overthrow it on constitutional grounds."

Woolley stated that he believed the law should be upheld and expressed a desire to be fair in the matter to both sides. Regarding the Miguel case which is now in the courts to test the constitutionality of the law, Woolley stated that he had not been advised, and did not know whether or not he would be called upon to take a part in the case.

MRS. KINNEY HAS NARROW ESCAPE

TWO ACCIDENTS ON KAUALI, ONE OF WHICH WAS NEARLY A SERIOUS AFFAIR.

The Garden Island prints the following:

Mrs. W. A. Kinney met with an accident last week that might have resulted very seriously, but fortunately was limited to a severe sprain and a number of bruises.

The Kinneys had been spending the day with Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gay and had been taken home by Mrs. Gay in her automobile, that is to say, as far as the road leading down to the Lualaba beach house. Here they employed a Japanese hack driven to bring them home. The road winds along the side hill and at some places has rather steep brinks dropping off to the bottom of the gulch.

At one of these inconvenient places the careless driver got his carriage too far on the outer edge of the road, as all of a sudden it took a tumble down the twenty-foot embankment. Mr. Kinney saved himself by jumping as soon as he felt the carriage careening but Mrs. Kinney not realizing the danger remained in the carriage and was hurled along with a shower of each and stones. Mr. Kinney found her stunned at the bottom of the gulch, but closer examination revealed that besides some very painful bruises she had received no serious injury. It seems almost a miracle that she was not killed outright considering the side of the boulders and their rush right in her wake.

Judge Kepahe of Koloa is laid up with a sprained leg as a result of a runaway a week ago.

He and Deputy Sheriff Ellis of Lihue were driving to Wai'alea together Saturday afternoon with the intention of attending the meeting of Sunday school at Wai'alea the following day. They were using a horse belonging to the judge which on several occasions has showed himself to be of a skittish temper.

Coming along the Wai'alea road the animal became frightened at some imaginary object and veered suddenly to the side, overturning the buggy and throwing the occupants to the ground. Sheriff Ellis was soon up again and on examination found himself while and sound. Not so with the judge who soon discovered that something had happened to his leg. The buggy and the harness were in ruins and the horse had gone nobody knew where to. Ellis brought another and safer conveyance from Koloa which brought him to the judge back to his home. The doctor found that no bones were broken but the leg had suffered a severe sprain that will keep him from his official duties for a few days.

It was a wonderful ride up horseback, through a stratum of clouds, then above the great field of rolling waves that stretched out as far as the eye could reach, great rolling billows of snowy white that made one and all feel that he was perched upon the north pole with an interminable field of snow and ice on every hand. Then the sunset and the sea of white turned to crimson and gold. Some of the congressmen took out their notebooks to jot down impressions, but

WAS HERE WITH THE CONGRESSMEN

The World Today contains an extended account of the Hawaiian tour of the Congressional party recently here, by Alexander Hume Ford, a New York writer who was with the party. The following are the main features.

A few days' rest and investigation at Honolulu and then the "grand tour." Molokai and its leper settlement were passed at night. It was scarce daylight when the landing was made by barge at Kahului on the island of Maui.

Here and at the little town of Wailuku, a mile or so away, the company were domiciled in hotels and private houses. For the most part, these were in reality Chinese and Japanese villages. One had to search diligently for the residence or hut of a native Hawaiian, although these latter were well represented at the great stone school-house that is the finest building on the island. The schools on the Hawaiian islands are usually the most modern of all structures and the teachers are better paid than on the mainland, while the proportion of those who read and write is probably larger than on any other spot on the globe, New England not excepted. The event of the first day ashore at Maui was the visit to the school. The congressional party was seated on chairs placed upon the spacious lawn. Behind them were gathered the Hawaiian fathers and mothers, before them the five hundred school children of a dozen different nationalities stood upon the spacious porch and splendid stone steps, to sing the national songs of America and Hawaii. A little Chinese girl stepped forth from the ranks to recite a speech of welcome, to which one of the Congressmen responded, and then a Hawaiian lad came forward to remind the visitors that Hawaii was not an island possession, or a captured province, but that the island had sent L. A. Thurston to Washington to bring back the American flag, and he had done so. Even the Congressmen joined—as best they could—in the singing of Hawaii Ponoi, after that boyish speech that reflected the true patriotic spirit of the Hawaiians. Portuguese, Porto Rican and Korean children also bade the visitors welcome, and when the closing song "Aloha Oe" that plaintive, stirring appeal, composed by the Queen herself lifted itself on the air, there were few dry eyes. The children marched indoors to the closing strains for after

The time came when some of the party wearily of luau. Climbing the mountain to the crater of Haleakala, a hungry group of congressmen came upon a ranch house where lunch was to be served. No one was enthusiastic until Congressman Norris, who had glanced in through an open window, threw up both his arms and cried wildly: "Thank heavens something to eat at last a real beefsteak. No more luau for me." There was a wild scramble for seats at the table and ever after, in the congressional party, the native feasts were flouted to as "luau's."

I was one of the advance guard that slept on the mountain's summit at the edge of the crater. It was a wonderful ride up horseback, through a stratum of clouds, then above the great field of rolling waves that stretched out as far as the eye could reach, great rolling billows of snowy white that made one and all feel that he was perched upon the north pole with an interminable field of snow and ice on every hand.
